

Meredith A. Schanda, FNP-BC, is the Telehealth Advisor for Volunteers in Medicine America. She is a board-certified Family Nurse Practitioner and Chief Information Officer for Partnership Health Center, a VIM America affiliated clinic in Valdosta, GA. She has worked over thirteen years within various facets of the medical community, including the five years she served as a medical officer in the United States Air Force before transitioning to nonprofit healthcare.

After graduating Cum Laude from the University of Rhode Island with degrees in Biology and Spanish, Meredith went on to pursue her Nursing education from the Massachusetts General Hospital Institute of Health Profession.

Meredith specializes in the use of technology to optimize patient outcomes and the delivery of healthcare to vulnerable patient populations. At Partnership Health Center, Meredith pioneered the rollout of a successful telehealth initiative. Meredith believes the adoption of digital health services is integral to the correction of inequities in the modern medical landscape.
